THE COLLABORATION

STUDIO
Hendro
Hadinata

Following their debut collaboration for the KARANA Collection at Indonesia Design Week 2025, the American Hardwood Export Council and Studio Hendro Hadinata return with KARANA Habitat - an expanded partnership exploring American red oak, cherry and maple across a full collection of living and dining furniture for the home.

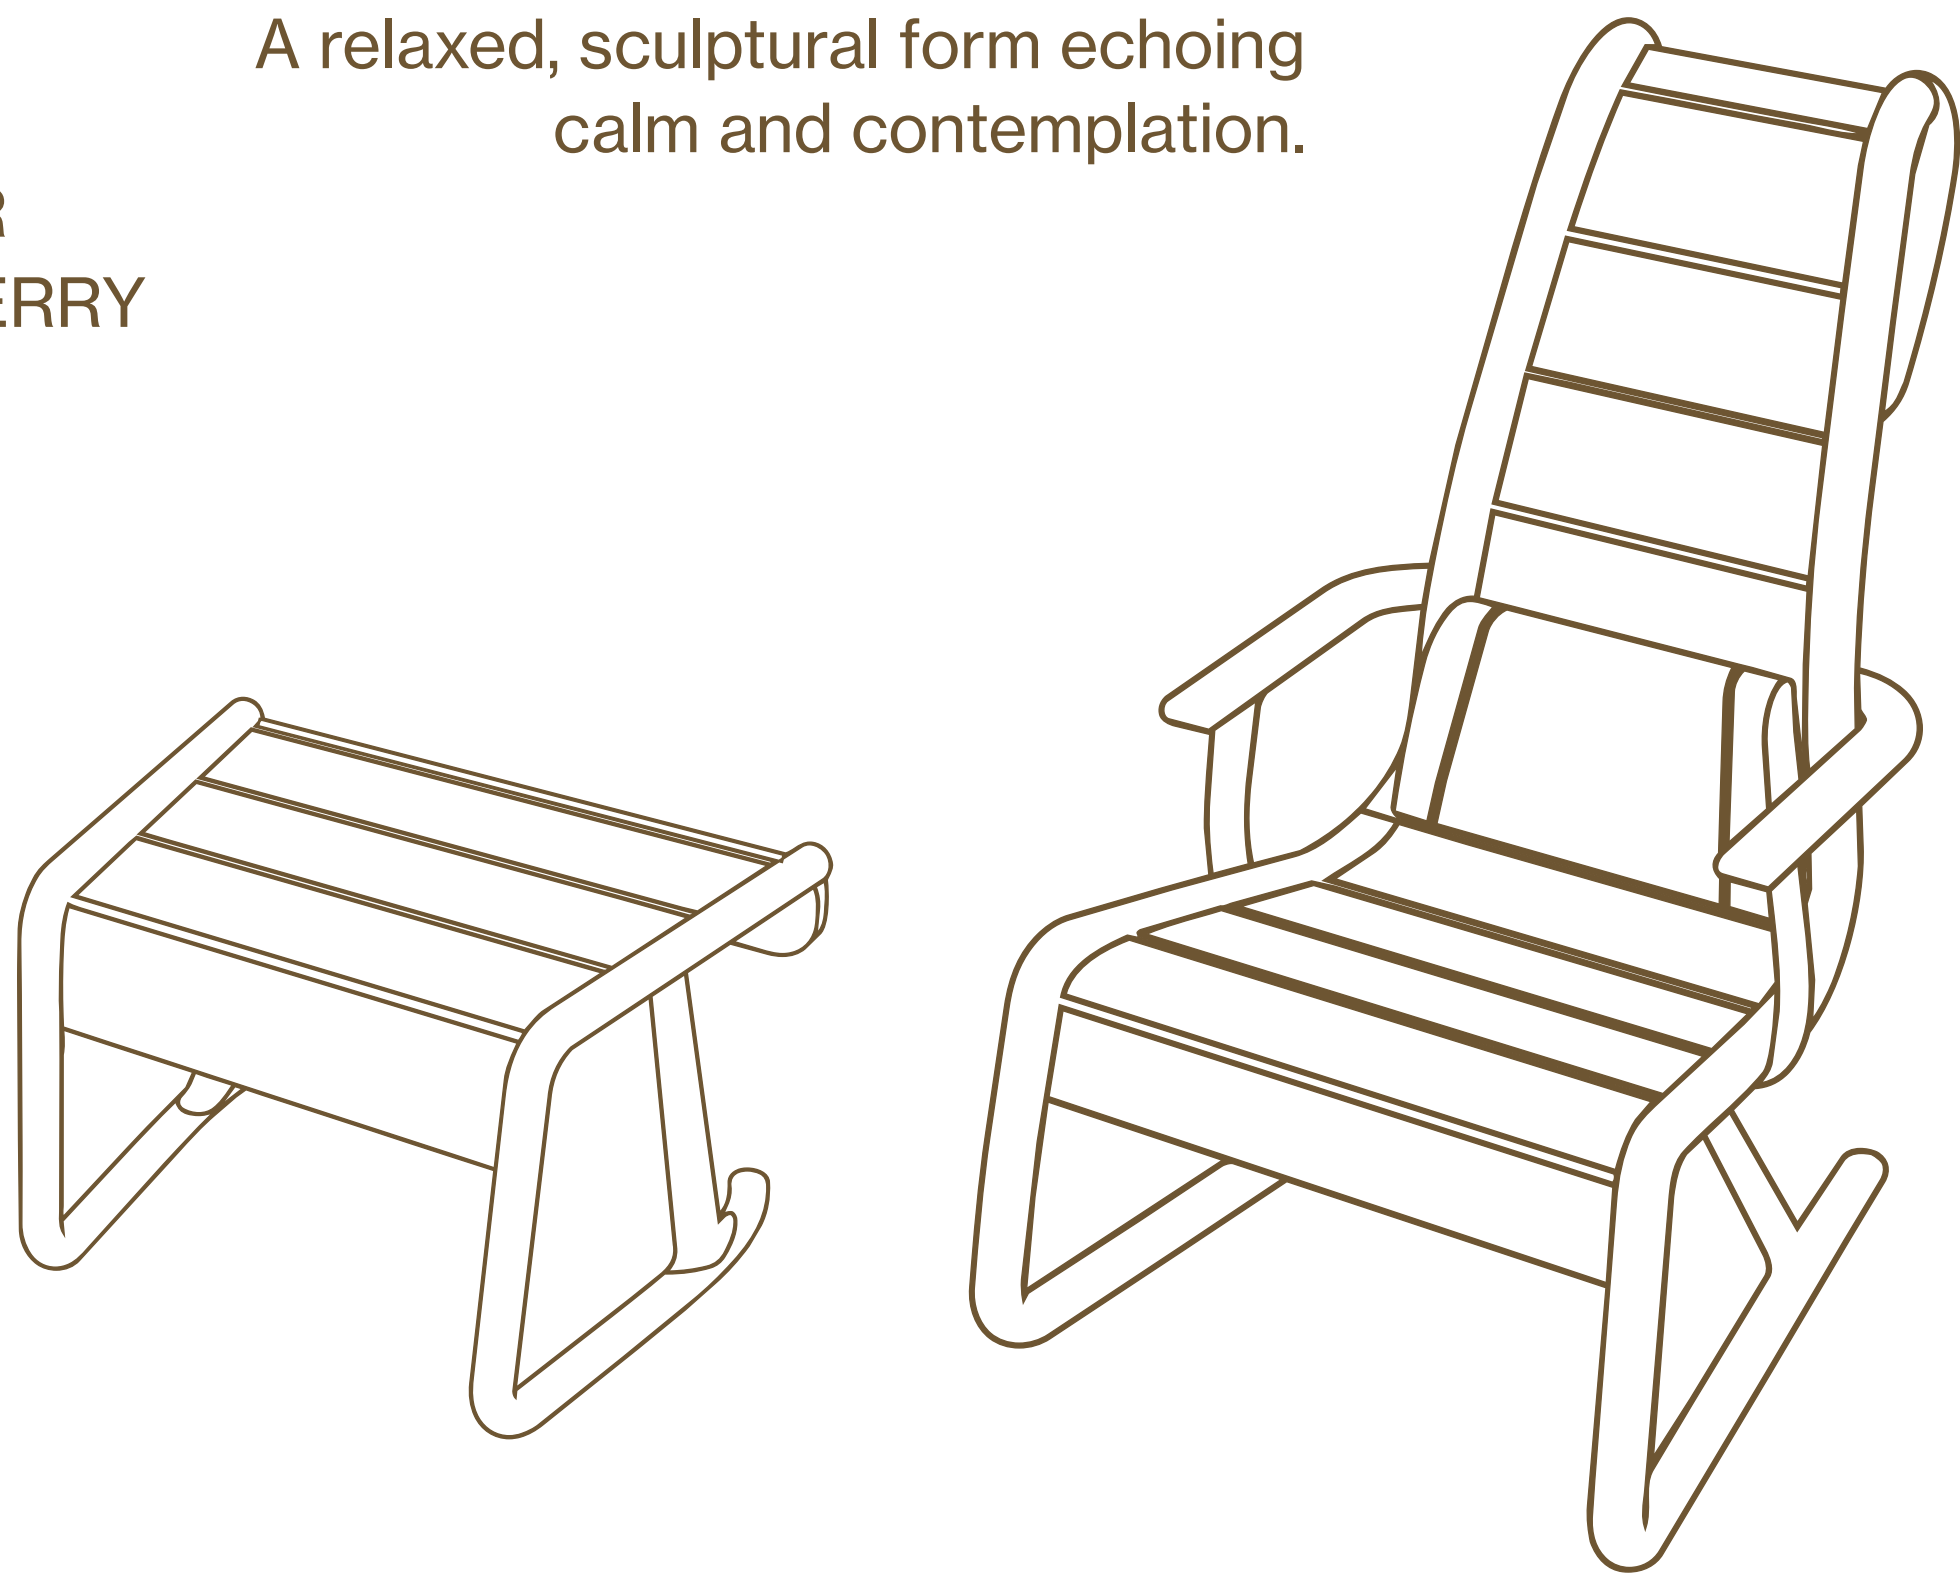

THE JOURNEY

KARANA Habitat

KARANA Habitat marks the next chapter in Hendro Hadinata's exploration of American hardwoods. Where the original KARANA Collection presented the Kuta Bench, Sanur Lounge Chair and Ubud Light as sculptural objects, Habitat expands the story into a sofa, dining chairs and a dining table designed for daily life. Having gained confidence working with red oak and cherry, Hadinata now introduces American hard maple, growing KARANA from three sculptural pieces into a complete collection for living and dining.

THE MATERIAL

Three American Hardwoods & Sustainability

KARANA Habitat is crafted from three sustainable American hardwoods. American red oak offers a bold, expressive grain and excellent workability, while American cherry brings a fine, uniform texture and warm tone that deepens with age.

Newly introduced to the collection, American hard maple has a creamy white colour, fine uniform texture and outstanding durability which make it ideal for surfaces where clean, precise finish and lasting performance matter.

KARANA Habitat's materials come from responsibly managed U.S. forests, where mature trees are selectively harvested to make way for new growth and volume increases every year. It's a philosophy of patience Hadinata sees reflected in the collection itself.

ABOUT AHEC

AHEC, the American Hardwood Export Council, is the leading international trade association for the American hardwood industry.

For over 30 years, AHEC has built a distinctive global reputation through design-led collaborations, research-driven projects and high-profile exhibitions that demonstrate the performance and sustainability of American hardwoods. By placing design at the centre of its work, AHEC continues to engage the global design community in meaningful dialogue around materials, environmental responsibility and the future of making.
